

Book Review: Marketing: Real people, Real choices

Hatem El-Gohary
Bradford University School Of Management, UK
Cairo University Business School, Egypt
EMM Lane, Bradford, West Yorkshire BD9 4JL UK
Tel: +44 (0)7525721537
Email: h.o.a.elgohary@bradford.ac.uk

Book Information

Book Title: Marketing: Real people, Real choices
Author: Michael R. Solomon, Greg Marshall and Elnora Stuart
Publisher: Pearson - Prentice Hall, USA
Edition: 5th edition
Year: 2008
Pages: 608 pages
ISBN: 0-13-229920-8
Price: £38.25

Keywords: marketing, marketing management, real marketing

BOOK REVIEW

The fifth edition of this book makes a significant contribution to the literature of marketing by well known authors, and fills an acknowledged void in the field of Marketing. The book provides a resourceful introduction to marketing, and covers a wide range of marketing related aspects as well as a precious selection of real world cases that relate the reader to real marketing situations.

Throughout the book, the authors were able to target students studying marketing at undergraduate and postgraduate levels, as well as practitioners. The authors' main aim was to provide a comprehensive illustration to all the aspects related to marketing in the real world. The reader can experience these real world marketing situations through three main routes within the book which are: real people/real choices segments, entrepreneurial focused spotlight boxes, and end of part cases which is based on a real start up companies.

The book is divided into five parts. The first three chapters introduce and describe the main concepts of marketing, as well as strategic market planning and thriving in the marketing environment. While the second part is concerned with understanding consumers' value needs and provides a comprehensive discussion of this value in terms of marketing research, consumer behaviour and B2B markets, the third part is concerned with creating the value proposition. Afterwards, the fourth part provided a deep discussion related to communicating the value proposition and the final two chapters deal specifically with the delivery of value proposition.

In the introduction part of the book the authors provided a clear explanation of the concepts related to the value of marketing, the evolution of marketing, marketing metrics, what can be marketed, the marketing of value and marketing as a process. This is followed by an outline of strategic marketing planning, namely: business planning, levels of business planning, the frame of strategic planning, marketing planning and finally creating and working with a marketing plan. Afterwards, the last chapter in this section is dedicated to thriving in the marketing environment and provided a clear explanation of the concepts related to ethical behaviour, social responsibility, global marketing as well as choosing a marketing mix strategy.

Nevertheless, in the second part of the book the authors provide a good contribution to the field. Here they deal with understanding consumers value needs in a logical but robust manner. Through an uncomplicated presentation style, in the first two chapters of this part the authors were able to illustrate the major issues of marketing research and consumer behaviour. Within this context, the authors provided a good presentation for the different steps in the marketing research process, the concept of data mining, the different steps in the consumer decision making process, the different influences on consumer decision as well as C2C E-Commerce. In chapters six and seven B2B markets, target marketing strategies, positioning and CRM are discussed in some depth.

Within the third part of the book, the authors provided a comprehensive discussion about creating the value proposition. In four chapters they provided a deep illustration for the issues related to the product concept, classifying products, developing new products, product planning, marketing activities throughout the product life cycle, creating product identity, effective product management, marketing people, pricing and its strategies, estimating demand and cost and finally legal and ethical issues in pricing.

Moreover, the fourth part was devoted to cover communicating the value proposition in terms of advertising, sales promotion, public relations, personal selling and sales management. Afterwards, the last part of the book relates to delivering of value proposition. In chapters fifteen and sixteen the authors covered the issues related to the delivery of value proposition through the value chain, distribution channels and the concept and issues of retailing. The book ends with a thorough analysis of developing a store positioning strategy.

The presentation style throughout the book makes its accessible since each section has real world implications and clear links to other chapters. Moreover, each chapter provides appropriate definitions, clear discussion, chapter review and marketing in action cases. From the reviewer point of view, the book covers a broad range of marketing applications and offers a precious selection of real world cases. These in depth cases are assisted by the clarity of presentation and the authors' experience, providing an aid for successful learning and help to achieve the main aims of the book.

To sum up, the book is comprehensive and, a delight to read. It contains a lot of useful information in its 608 pages and demonstrates that the authors are recognised specialists in this field. The book will be beneficial to students, academicians and practitioners involved in marketing implementation. The reviewer believes that this is a good book and highly recommends reading it.

Book titleMarketing: Real People Real Choices. Author. Michael R. Solomon; Greg W. Marshall; Elnora W. Stuart.Â Cultural Diversity
â€“ a management practice that actively seeks to include people of different sexes, races, ethnic groups & religions in an organizationâ€™s employees, customers, suppliers & distribution channel partners. *Demographics â€“ statistics that measure observable aspects of a population, including size, age, gender, ethnic group, income, education, occupation & family structure o Segments by demographics Thank you for reading marketing real people real choices. Maybe you have knowledge that, people have search hundreds times for their chosen books like this marketing real people real choices, but end up in infectious downloads.Â Maybe you have knowledge that, people have search hundreds times for their chosen books like this marketing real people real choices, but end up in infectious downloads. Rather than enjoying a good book with a cup of coffee in the afternoon, instead they are facing with some harmful virus inside their computer. marketing real people real choices is available in our book collection an online access to it is set as public so you canâ€™| CONTINUE READING. Save to Library.

Amazon calculates a product's star ratings using a machine learned model instead of a raw data average. The machine learned model takes into account factors including: the age of a review, helpfulness votes by customers and whether the reviews are from verified purchases. Review this product. Share your thoughts with other customers. Write a customer review. Book title Marketing: Real People Real Choices. Author. Michael R. Solomon; Greg W. Marshall; Elnora W. Stuart. Cultural Diversity " a management practice that actively seeks to include people of different sexes, races, ethnic groups & religions in an organization's employees, customers, suppliers & distribution channel partners. *Demographics " statistics that measure observable aspects of a population, including size, age, gender, ethnic group, income, education, occupation & family structure o Segments by demographics

Marketing: Real People, R has been added to your Cart. Add to Cart. Buy Now. More Buying Choices. 6 new from $179.64 45 used from $59.98 2 Rentals from $27.75 1 collectible from $120.00. 54 offers from $27.75. Editorial Reviews. About the Author. Michael R. Solomon, PhD, joined the Haub School of Business at Saint Joseph's University in Philadelphia as Professor of Marketing in 2006.