To foster ethical discussion and understanding in the workplace, the Lockheed Martin company developed a quiz for employees called "Gray Matters." The quiz is multiple choice, with a range of points awarded (or subtracted) depending on the response. Subsequently, the approach has been adopted by a wide range of corporations. As a business leader I recognize my role in society. My purpose is to lead people and manage resources to create value that no single individual can create alone. My decisions affect the well-being of individuals inside and outside my enterprise, today and tomorrow. Therefore, I promise that A case study of how Starbucks practices ethics in every aspect of its business including work, HR management, supply chain and community service. The importance of ethics has been highlighted time and again in the context of business. In the twenty first century government and a number of watchdog agencies have been keeping a keen eye on businesses that try to engage in unethical practices. While large businesses mostly act responsibly, sometime they too may feel inclined to indulge in unethical practices just for the sake of profits. From Nike to Walmart, all have faced fierce criticism in the past for unethical practices. From supply chain to HR management and in other areas too including marketing, there is a need for businesses both
